A Window Into the Constitution

The Constitution is one of the most important documents in the United States, yet how many of us have ever really read it? How many of us have taken the time to explore it? Join us on Wednesday, September 20th between 12pm-2pm and get ready to change all that! We will have chalk crayons available and you will be able to write out sections of the Constitution on the Library windows. Make sure you stop in to celebrate Constitution Day in a brand new, very colorful way! This is an IS approved event.

Librarian Allen Reichert will be leading this activity. Read about his inspiration from the New York Times here.
